

SELF-MADE MAN MAY BE TAILOR-MADE TOO

However Not a Question of What He Puts On But What He Puts Off.

FEW AND THIN!
Demand Is for Less and Less
—May Be Competing
With Women.

By MARGARET ROHE
(Written for the United Press)

God's noblest work is man, they say,
But just 'twixt me and you
I think some tailor person had Still quite a lot to do.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Good fortune, good health and a good wife are as nothing in a man's life compared to a good tailor. Even a self-made man, if he be wise, ends by being a tailor-made man. Almost every man, though he may not care to admit it, owes almost everything to his tailor, as a glance over said tailor's books undoubtedly would reveal.

It's really not so much a question of what a man shall put on these days however, as what he may put off. With all the girls shedding garments in reckless abandon to the fore and aft of them—petticoats, stockings and gloves—it certainly seems as if poor men ought to be allowed a little abandon on his own account.

One of the sizzling nights last week visited New York sat up and took notice of three brass, not to say rash, 'outh Americans who appeared at a 'oof show all dolled up in perfect informal summer evening attire. They ore well fitting pumps, silk hose, reproachably pressed trousers, soft eated white silk shirts and black w ties. All complete save for one tie detail. Instead of the conventional dinner coat, the only coat each ore was one of tan.

Thin Apparel a Bit Too Thick.

Now this, though thin apparel, was ily a bit too thick. Even though i panted with the heat, Convention well as Fashion insists that you be ted as well after 6 P. M. in the blic eve. Negligee shirts sans coat re quite de rigueur at the ringside the Willard-Dempsey fight. They en go very well of an evening among e denizens of Casey's Bar or I should y Pink Tea Emporium but as the ight of taste and fashion at a Roof arden they are much too low.

Still Monsieur Le Mode who tyrannizes as completely over his male lions as Madame La Mode does over r feminine ones, seems blessed ith a few humanitarian qualities. He nds more and more towards comfort d common sense in male attire each ecessive season. Hence the gradual appearance of the stiff choker col- the stiff bosomed shirt and the yed shoulder.

Bob Trousers as Well as Skirts. ow even for evening wear the col- s are low and comfortable, whether y be the turn-over brand or the igned variety. Dinner jackets of itweight porous fresco cloth are missible for all but the most for- l of summer evening functions and e's where man may actually shed nothing, even if it isn't his coat. His atweight unlined dinner jacket with shawl collar of black satin is so nstructed that it may be worn guilt- s of a waistcoat. To be sure the at discreetly keeps itself close but- ed so as not to reveal unduly it's istcoatless condition, but thanks to s altruistic hot weather fashion, re are as many correctly and com- tably garbed waistcoatless men se summer evenings as there are ily, chic petticoatless women.

With such a long stride taken in direction of comfort, who knows that the next step in the emancipation of the male from sartorial servitude will follow further in the footsteps of the more freely frocked female so that he may yet bob his users even as she has her skirts.

nty Prosecutor Says Jail Has Had No Drunkards During July.

George Starrett, prosecuting attorney of Boone County, said this morning that he had no positive data on decrease of bootlegging in Columbia but that he knew there had not an intoxicated person in the city throughout the month of July.

believe this is a record for Columbia. It is the only July that such a high record has occurred here," declared the prosecutor.

ere used to be as many as fifty hundred intoxicated persons a month here. As far as the y condition is concerned Columbia is in an excellent shape. Not even drug stores are allowed to have any on tap and doctors are not permitted to write prescriptions for it," said Mr. Starrett.

According to Mr. Starrett, the first time the maximum penalty has ever been given for bootlegging in Columbia was given in the June term of the Circuit Court.

"I have been in various towns of the state and I believe the moral, sanitary and liquor conditions of Columbia are far above the average for a city of this size. There is not another town in the state of Missouri where the atmosphere is any cleaner than in Columbia."

E. S. Rowland of the city police department said that he hadn't seen a drunk man in Columbia since the country went dry.

"There has not been any disturbance of the peace because of liquor since national prohibition went into effect," said Mr. Rowland.

Half of Football Games To Be on Rollins Field

Four of the eight football games to be played by Missouri this fall will be on Rollins Field. Officials for all the games have been chosen and the list includes, as far as possible, the same officials who were booked for the games last year.

The first game of the season will be played by Drury College in Columbia, October 4. Drury did not have any football team last year and it will be hard to guess just what sort of a team will present itself October 4. Drury had a team that was not defeated two years ago and won from St. Louis University that year. George Baldwin, who coached the team two years ago, is again in charge of football in Drury this year and he may round up a fairly good team. C. P. LeMire, Jefferson City, will umpire the game, and W. G. Gordan, Marshall, will be referee. F. C. Allen of Warrensburg will be head linesman.

Ames Scheduled to Play Here on October 18

Ames will play here October 18. Officials for this game will be J. C. Grover, of Kansas City, referee; C. E. McBride of the Kansas City Star, umpire, and W. C. Gordan, head linesman. Those who remember the hard-fought battle of three years ago when, after Missouri had carried the ball across the field four times only to lose it, Ames had the pigskin two or three inches from the goal when the whistle blew and ended the game in a tie, will have a chance to see the two teams fight it out again. Ames won from M. U. two years ago.

November 6 is the date for the Nebraska game. This game will be played here also. Officials will be referee, A. G. Reid; umpire, F. C. Allen, and head linesman, W. G. Gordan. Nebraska took the game two years ago.

The Drake game will be played here October 23. Allen will be referee; Ed Cochran of the Kansas City Journal, umpire, and Gordan, head linesman. Missouri won from Drake in 1917.

The games to be played out of town are: Kansas Aggies at Manhattan, October 11; Oklahoma University, November 1; Washington University in St. Louis, November 15; Kansas University at Lawrence, November 27. The officials for these games will be chosen by the opposing teams.

PERSHING WAS POPULAR AMONG MORO NATIVES

"General Pershing never cared to wine and dine. It seemed to bore him," Miss Eunice Wilson was overheard to say. Miss Wilson has lived most of her life in the Philippines and during a part of that time her father, Fred L. Wilson, was secretary of the province in which Pershing was governor.

"I never like to talk about him. People act so queerly when I mention I have known him. He lived very simply and was loved by both the natives and the Americans in the islands."

"Once the Moros were giving a big fair. There must have been 5,000 natives there, representing every tribe in the islands. It was given in Zamboanga, the capital of the Moro province. On the platform a public dance was in full tilt. General Pershing, his wife and my mother and father were looking on. Mrs. Pershing, who was young and full of life, slipped her arm through General Pershing's and teased him to dance with her on the platform. Pershing refused but, looking longingly at the platform, turned to my father and said with emphasis, 'Isn't it hell to be a general!' For Pershing, like his wife, was a great lover of the dance. He appeared at all the social functions in a white uniform with gold buttons."

"At this same fair was a Moro chieftan, 39 years old and 36 inches high. He had received offers many times from circuses but had always refused. He was financially independent, and such a mode of life was beneath his dignity."

"The general, who was host at the fair, took special delight in the little chieftan, carrying him around with him wherever he went. It was a queer sight, big Pershing in his military uniform with the little native, in his fanciful Filipino garb, on his arm. Pershing would give him the biggest cigar he could find and sit and smoke and chat with him."

"A fancy dress ball was given one night. Mr. Wilson went in the costume of a backwoods farmer. He wore blue overalls supported only by a string across one shoulder. The general greeted him early in the evening but came back later with a twinkle in his eye. He looked over the costume approvingly. 'Well,' he said, 'that costume did not strike me as very much at first, but since I've been thinking about it, it is striking. Suppose that string should break!'

"Pershing was the last military general in the Philippines. He went over as a captain but proved his worth so quickly and so well that he was promoted over the heads of hundreds of superior officers and made governor of the Moros. The Mohammedans in the province had been running amuck, killing Christians. Pershing issued orders that deprived the natives of all weapons except their bolo knives, which they used for agricultural purposes. But in spite of the fact that he had to be strict with them, he was very popular. The secret of this may have been that he never 'put on any dog' but was truly democratic."
